past few weeks. Captain Sage noted that there are already about two dozen structures that could pass specifications as private shelters in the area. He said that the larger impetus is coming from the Township. Mr. W. Joseph Shinn, Township building inspector, reported that a half a dozen building permits have been issued for shelter construction recently.

Revealing that the state Civil Defense organization sent out about 200,000 shelter booklets on request during one week recently, Mr. Dignan explained that there is "a great deal more shelter-building going on than people realize." He said that many have been kept secret to avoid ridicule or keep neighbors from using it during disaster.

Both Captain Sage and Mr. Dignan concurred on the advocacy of government encouragement for private shelter building, a phase that will probably not be undertaken by the government. Such encouragement would include the waiving of building permit fees for shelters, the exemption of shelters from property tax assessment and an income tax reduction for the construction of shelters.

"For the first time the federal government is doing something itself about defense," Mr. Dignan said, in criticizing previous government encouragement to private citizens that wasn't accompanied by its own action in the field. He noted that a national survey will begin around the first of December of public shelter capabilities throughout the country.

Reflecting intense private concern in Princeton is Dr. Jack A. Vernon, Associate Professor of Psychology at the University. A member of the advisory committee of the Disaster Research Group of the National Academy of Science, Professor Vernon conducted Project Hideaway for that group two summers ago.

Project Hideaway, involving the five-member family of Mr. Thomas Pownor, Windsor, was a two-week experiment conducted in a shelter. Since the experiment, Mrs. Pownor has spoken all over the East about shelters.

The owner of a shelter for his family, Dr. Vernon cited two essential features of the shelter: to provide fallout and some blast protection and to make the United States "less vulnerable to thermonuclear blackmail."

Noting that the Princeton area is "peculiarly vulnerable," he advocated shelters as "protection from the idiocy of other nations." He said that his guess would be that a thermonuclear war would be "a one-shot affair, perpetrated by accident."

"We can't rest on hope and optimism," he said, in recalling that the United States—the only nation to use nuclear bombs in war—decided to drop atom bombs on Japan after it was convinced that it was winning World War II.

He observed two chronic misunderstandings about fall-out procedure. Persons don't realize that protection from radiation is a matter of shielding, not of filtering, he said, and that period of confinement in a shelter would probably be only two weeks, with total confinement lasting only several days. He said that the 14-day Project Hideaway isolation was used as a maximum confinement period.

Professor Vernon advocated a radiological detector for each shelter, in addition to proposed area detectors, because of the varied fallout rates. Noting that he has one in his shelter, he said that the detector, a type of electroscope, could be made to sell for about 50 cents.

Noting that the present alarm system is "ridiculous" because sirens don't mean anything to the American citizen, he favored an individual building alarm, similar to the one recently proposed to plug into an AC outlet and be controlled through utility companies simultaneously.

Captain Sage explained that if a citizen would consider the shelter and other disaster precautions as "means of insurance," the problems would not be difficult. Concerned Princetonians are urged to contact Captain Sage at his office in the Borough Engineering Building, Witherspoon Street, phone WA 4-4959.

FED WITH YOUR BED?

Try Salt Water Instead. If mattresses never seem to match your contours, then Clark Cameron has a suggestion—try sleeping in salt water. The Griggstown-residing Cameron has invented and patented such a salt water bed and now plans to sell it.

Known as Aquarest, his invention consists of an elongated bathtub with continuously circulating warmed water, just salty enough for floating.

BED, WITH RUNNING WATER: Inventor Clark Cameron, formerly affiliated with the Opinion Research Corporation, demonstrates his salt-water bed with which he hopes to revolutionize American sleeping habits. Called Aquarest, the model here is steel lined with fiberglass. A new molded fiberglass model is being prepared in Trenton which will feature 30 spouts for circulating water. The water is cloudy because of traces of magnesium carbonate in the salt used.

It's supposed to provide the relaxation of floating in the ocean without the fear of waves or denizens of the deep.

According to Mr. Cameron, the salt water bed provides near-perfect rest because it both places the individual in an anti-gravity environment and keeps the entire body at the same temperature. Unlike at mattress, water pushes with an even pressure, and as long as it circulates it keeps all parts of the body (except those out of the water) at the same temperature.

Mr. Cameron believes scientific studies will demonstrate people need less sleep when they use Aquarest. "We already know that the brain needs only about an hour's sleep most sleeping time is spent in becoming comfortable enough to give the brain this brief rest," Mr. Cameron explained.

"The Water Got Cold" Mr. Cameron, who has worked sporadically on the invention for the past five years, estimates that he has probably slept in more bathtubs, longer than anyone else in the world. He started out by simply filling up his own tub at home, but "the water got cold."

Undaunted, he took to adding hot water periodically and began searching for some way to make himself float. Salt was the obvious answer. "The supermarket couldn't understand why there was a run on three-pound boxes of salt."

Finally, Mr. Cameron gave up his job as a survey director at the Opinion Research Corporation in February and devoted full time to his salt water bed. With the aid of a friend, he sawed an old oil tank in half and arranged to have hot water added continuously.

"It was a pretty odd looking contraption, and the hot water bill was hard to bear," the inventor recalls. But it was successful enough to encourage Mr. Cameron to go on with a full scale model, complete with immersion heater and circulating pump to keep things at a constant 96 degrees.

Drawing No Problem. Just like everyone else, the inventor worried about the prospect of his head going under while asleep. "I came close to developing a permanently sore neck before I discovered your head naturally centers itself and stays above water while you sleep," he explained.

The next question put by skeptics, according to the inventor, is "What happens if you roll over?" It seems, however, that individuals do not roll over out of habit, but only when something such as a cold draft or a hard spot in the mattress stimulates the "roll over" mechanism.

After he conceived of the salt water bed, Mr. Cameron discovered that many people snooze while floating on their backs in a calm ocean. Also, other research has revealed that sea animals require very little sleep on the average, suggesting that if people sleep in water they may need less.

Four Hours' Sleep Enough. The inventor has tried his watery bed for no more than four hours at a time but claims that this was quite sufficient. "I awoke completely refreshed."

He believes inventors have missed the water bed idea because they insisted on using fresh rather than salt water. "We must rid ourselves of this fixation on fresh water," he emphasizes, noting that salt water is more buoyant and induces less skin withering than fresh.

Patent researchers turned up only two earlier attempts at a "water bed." In 1914 an inventor developed a device for sleeping on a mattress floating in water and in 1933 another individual designed a bag which would keep hospital patients up to their necks in water.

"Cradle of the Deep." Since his original struggles with a bathtub and oil tank, Mr. Cameron has formed the Aquarest Corporation, complete with scientific and medical advisory board. Among those serving on the board is Margaret Mead, who terms his invention "the cradle of the deep."

In the near future Mr. Cameron, as president of the corporation, will try to find practical medical applications in the general field of hydrotherapy and explore the possibilities for Aquarest as a research tool. Initially, sales will be almost exclusively to interested institutions.

If he is successful, he believes Aquarest will revolutionize the method of sleeping. It will certainly reduce the problems of fires in bed.

THE OTHER DAY

it was amusing to hear this quote from Pliny's Natural History, written almost 2000 years ago, as a cure for warts: "Lie on your back along a boundary line on the 20th day of the moon, extend the hands over the head, and with whatever thing you grasp, when so doing, rub the warts, and they will soon disappear."

We all know of foolish ideas for cures that have been handed down as superstitions from generation to generation. Many are still popular in various places, such as the belief that sap from plant life, such as milkweed, can cure warts.

Actually, the medical world is not quite sure what causes warts on children's hands, but certainly they do not come from handling toads, another old superstition.

Warts that appear on adults are probably caused by irritation or infection, and are frequently regarded as contagious. As a matter of caution, all skin growths should be looked at by a doctor. A doctor can easily remove ordinary warts by burning with acid or electrically, and it's really painless.

The moral is that whatever the problem, all the way from removing a wart, to finding and correcting a quirk in your car, or providing you with just the right car, your satisfaction and economy is best assured by going to a conscientious specialist.

ZONING BOARD ACTS

On Sacred Heart School. After months of deliberation, the Township Zoning Board has approved a request from the Religious of the Sacred Heart for the construction of a school on the Great Road. The Zoning Board action came after an executive session Tuesday night — over two months following the final hearing on the school.

In allowing the special permit for the school, the Zoning Board made nine stipulations seeking to preserve the residential nature of the district; Sacred Heart must remain a day school only; all buildings must be under 2½ stories well set-back from property lines; recreational areas must be at least 200 feet from property lines and shielded by landscaping; off street parking must be provided; attendance must be under 300, with a resident faculty of no more than 30; and the proposed Ascot Road must be constructed by the school.

The Board expressed satisfaction that "there is a local need for the proposed facility," noting that 109 of the proposed 187 students would come from Princeton Borough or Township. It also found that neither the nuisance factors nor traffic problems would be extensive.

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT UP

But Few Buildings To Open. Enrollment is expected to reach an all-time high when Princeton area schools open early next month. Relatively few new buildings will go into use, however, as schools take a momentary breather from the race to keep up with increases in school-age population.

As shown in the table on this page, 1961-62 enrollment will be almost double that in the 1950-51 school year. Counting only the public and private schools in Princeton proper, the figure is 5,817 for 1961-62 against 3,110 for 1950-51 an increase of 86 per cent.

Of the 17 institutions listed in the table, however, only two will increase capacity by opening new buildings next month. These include Franklin Township, with its new 52-room Franklin High School, and the Chapin School, with its additional wing doubling the school's floor space.

Princeton Township, Lawrence Township and Plainsboro Township all made additions to their physical plants in the recent past, while Miss Fine's and Princeton Country Day, Princeton Township, Hopewell Township and West Windsor Township contemplate construction within the next year or two. In some cases construction has begun, while in others only the property has been acquired.

No Double Sessions. Unlike many of the areas in the State, where the number of children on half sessions is expected to be well above the figure for 1950, the Princeton area will have virtually no children attending half-days. Only kindergarten pupils will be split between two sessions.

Also, the average number of pupils per class will remain relatively low (about 25) for area schools. In Plainsboro, for example, the figure is 17, while in Hopewell Township it is 30, with all of the others centering in the mid-20's.

Although the New Jersey Education Association foresees a rise of 61.8 per cent in high school enrollment and of 32.4 per cent in primary school enrollment in the next decade, this growth will hit the municipalities in the Princeton area with varying force. The Borough Board of Education, for example, plans to keep the high school enrollment down to 1,500, forcing the present sending districts to build high schools of their own as they grow.

West Windsor, which presently has only elementary grades, is presently feeling this growth acutely with the influx of new personnel for the Amercan Cyanamid Agricultural Research Center. Within two days last week, six new school children appeared from this source alone.

Two Projects for Princeton

Part of the increase in Princeton itself will be taken up by the construction of the Township school system's new Community Park School, scheduled to be completed a year from now, and the Princeton Day Schools' new campus on the Great Road. While construction has already started on the Community

Park School, Miss Fine's and Princeton Country Day, which together form Princeton Day Schools, have yet to break ground.

The Community Park School will provide 22 additional classrooms plus several special-purpose rooms for both school and community use. The 70-acre Princeton Day School's campus on the Great Road will have a capacity of more than 700, and will offer education for boys through 12th grade.

Elsewhere, Hopewell Township has started construction on a new 20-classroom school on Bear Tavern Road. West Windsor Township has purchased a 20-acre site on Clarksville Road in Princeton Junction and plans to have a school ready for occupancy there in September 1963.

The remaining municipalities have no immediate construction plans. Lawrence Township, for example, just completed 15 extra elementary classrooms and added 10 more rooms to its junior high school, while Plainsboro Township is still filling up the six-classroom addition completed last year.

Math Program Extended. Although neither Princeton Borough nor Township will open a new school this fall, both will offer new instruction in the form of souped-up math classes for the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. The two school systems, along with Miss Fine's will adapt portions of the School Mathematics Study Group program for use in these grades.

The SMSG program is already in use in the seventh and eighth grades of the three institutions. The group issued a program extending back through the fourth grade only last spring.

At Princeton High School, Russian II and German IV will be offered for the first time, along with a second year of home arts as a free elective for girls. Also, a special math course will again be offered by PHS at Princeton University in cooperation with the department of mathematics there.

Other curriculum changes for Princeton schools include the addition of courses in chemistry and oriental history

NEWBURGH PLAN SCORED

Two former presidents of the Family Service Agency of Princeton have attacked the welfare laws of Newburgh, N. Y., as being based on false assumptions. Mrs. Herbert Langfield and Mrs. Eleanor Delaney disagree that that "able-bodied people would rather go on relief than work" and that "women have illegitimate children for mercenary reason."

Mrs. Langfield is presently chairman of the Agency's Case Committee, while Mrs. Delaney has been associated with the Agency for 30 years and currently serves on the Case Committee. They both believe Princeton's low-relief budget stems from the careful investigation of applications made by the organization.

"No physically able-bodied person with an average ambition" is willing to live on the low level of living provided by relief, according to the two women. They also note that "an allowance of an extra $16.20 per month for food for a second baby can hardly be considered an inducement to produce an illegitimate child."

The two women argue that organizations such as those maintained by the United Community Fund reduce welfare needs by keeping up moral standards. "Constructive preventive work can achieve much more than sterner laws."

THREE HEARINGS SET

For Committee Meeting. Township Committee will hold three public hearings at the session scheduled for 8 p.m. Monday night.

Up for consideration are ordinances covering the assessments for the Herrontown Road-Herrontown Circle sewer, sidewalks for Jefferson Road and a short portion of Moore Street and repairs for Levitt Lane. The Committee would also award the contract for the supply of gasoline for Township vehicles.

ALL IN THE ACT

On Harry's Brook, The Borough, the Township, the County and the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association joined in the battle against a flood-prone Harry's Brook last week and it appeared that even the State and Federal governments might be brought into the act before long.

The Borough and Township engineers met with property owners and a representative of the County engineer's office to consider the problem. Meanwhile, the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association completed and sent to the municipalities a questionnaire to be used in collecting information on flood damage caused by the Brook.

After inspecting the area where the brook crosses Snowden Lane Borough Engineer Arthur T. Brokaw concluded that "something must be done—fast." Both he and Township engineer James Breth intend to bring the problem to the attention of the municipalities' governing bodies at the first opportunity.

The first step would be an engineering survey to establish the elevation of the brook throughout its two-mile course from Harrison Street to Lake Carnegie. Such a survey would indicate where the channel of the brook should be cleaned.

straightened, deepened or lined and would permit evaluation of the efficiency of the Snowden Lane culvert.

Who Will Pay? The big question, of course, is who will pay for the survey and any work which must be done: the municipalities, the property owners, or one of the larger governmental bodies. Although the greatest part of the brook is in the Township, both the headwaters and a short section which caused a great deal of damage in the July 29 storm are in the Borough.

The county is only directly responsible for the Snowden Lane culvert (it never accepted the Harriet Drive culvert). It claims the Snowden Lane culvert, which was constructed only three years ago, is large enough if the downstream side is properly maintained.

It is possible, however, that the Federal government will assist through either the Army Corps of Engineers or the Soil Conservation Service. The completed questionnaires will be sent to the Federal agencies by the Stony Brook-Millstone Watersheds Association.

The questionnaires, which will be sent to property owners along the stream, are being approved by the Soil Conservation Service. Although the Army Corps of Engineers has first responsibility for urban areas, Association director Malcolm Crooks believes the Conservation Service's programs are probably more appropriate for problems such as Harry's Brook.

The Conservation Service would both do the surveying and assist financially with construction if it approved the project. Its participation

News Of The THEATRES

GOOD FUN FOR ALL
With Little Theatre. Three evenings of successful entertainment marked the Little Theatre's third season last week. The company of 11, whose youngest member will enter Princeton High this fall, presented four one-act plays with skill and well-channelled enthusiasm.

The plays, by Edna St. Vincent Millay, Anton Chekov, Tennessee Williams and Fernando Arrabal, were well chosen for variety. Peter Vajk, Virginia Corbett and John Thorpe gave brisk direction, and imaginatively overcame the problems of a small stage.

Sally Thorpe and Gordon Lutz, as Columbine and Pierrot, opened the evening in Millay's "Aria da Capo," and portrayed the two stock characters admirably. Some of the humor of Pierrot's lines was lost in over-rapid delivery, but the stilted attitudes of the

As the not-so-gentle shepherds, John Thorpe and Louisa Cook, gave the roles the charm and naturalness inherent in their youth. The good-natured rough-house at the beginning of the scene created exactly the right atmosphere, and the crescendo of mutual destruction was marred only by some clumsy cuts in dialogue.

Peter Vajk, the director, also played a chilling Cothurnus, dressed entirely in black with a white mask. His supervision of the shepherds' conflict from the top of a stepladder in the center of the stage, and his subsequent off-stage instructions to Columbine and Pierrot put the play in proper perspective.

Monologues Fine. Peter Vajk next appeared as Ivan Ivanovitch Nyukhin, and delivered Chekov's lecture "On the Harmful Effects of Tobacco." The development of the hen-pecked character was beautifully created during the long monologue, and the essential gestures and accent were consistently funny.

The rasping tones of the South were heard in Williams' "This Property is Condemned." Linda Almgren played Willie to the hilt, and carried off acting honors with Peter Vajk for the group. A sordid heroine in the best Williams tradition, she immediately put across the character of the 13-year-old "woman," deluded by fantasies. The play was virtually another monologue, and the reality of Willie's struggles and babblings were never shattered.

John Thorpe played Tom, Willie's "straight man," and was unable to give much bite to a somewhat unbecoming rule. Whistling as he ambled down the center aisle with his kite, Tom provided a background of boredom for Willie's supercharged vitality. Virginia Corbett, producer of all four plays, directed this remarkable presentation.

Picnic Labored. Following the intermission, and three noteworthy offerings, the group did less well with Arrabal's "Picnic on the Battlefield." The author, described in a program note as a writer in the French avant-garde tradition of Beckett, Ionesco, Adamov and Vauthier, admits to the literary influences of the Marquis de Sade and W. C. Fields.

One of the results of this artistic jumble is "Picnic," supposedly a play of protest against war and a portrayal of man's folly and stupidity. Its labored message is conveyed in obvious dialogue. Says father to son on the use of cavalry in battle, "War was so much more colorful in my day." Fields delivered far better punch lines, and the Marquis was a far better satirist.

RUTH'S RECORD REVERED: Agreeing with the majority of her sex, Pat DiMassa (right) would not like to see Babe Ruth's home run record broken. Nancy Margerum slides with most men in feeling that the Babe's record was made to be broken.

Question of the Week

Question: Would you like to see either Mickey Mantle or Babe Ruth's home run record broken? Where asked: Palmer Square.

Nancy Margerum, 46 Wilton Street, PHS junior: I'd like to see it broken but not by a Yankee. I don't like the Yankees. I'd just like to be able to say that I was around when somebody broke Babe Ruth's record.

Pat DiMassa, 44 Wilton Street, PHS freshman: No, I hate to think that somebody might break Ruth's record after he had worked so hard to set it. I wouldn't mind seeing it broken in the distant future but not now.

Joe Friedman, 1903 Hall, Princeton University senior: I would not want to see it broken. I feel that is one record that should stand for all time. It will mean a tradition down the drain if it is broken. I really do believe that Ruth, but under more strenuous conditions than exist right now. I feel tests have proved that today's ball is more lively than the one used in Ruth's time. It has to be broken, though, I'd like to see Mantle do it.

Miss Joan Piontek, 36 Mercer Street, Yes, I would, because I like Mickey Mantle and I think we're due for a change. I think it would be nice to have a new baseball idol.

Alan Bernhardt, 27 Marion Road, West, PHS freshman: Yes, for one thing it shows that the modern era is improving over the past. I couldn't see Ruth hit his 60 and here I can see Mantle and Mantle do it.

Mrs. Maurice Oldham, 25 Clay Street, housewife: I thank Mrs. Babe Ruth would feel sad about it. I read recently in an article written by her that she would like to see it stand. But I feel it would be interesting to her, and to others, to see if the record could be broken.

Richard Provenzano, 42 Canahan Place, PHS senior: No, not really. It's one record I'd like to see Babe Ruth hold on to. But if it was broken, I'd like to see Mantle do it over. Mantle I don't like. Mantle I don't think Mantle will do it either. A lot of players have gotten as close as Mantle but were unable to break it.

Mrs. Henderson Talbot, 83 Allison Road, housewife: No.

Raymond Kato, 104 Lexington Street, Trenton, mail clerk, American Cyanamid: In a way I would. It's been quite a while since the record was set. I think at least one, if not both, will break it this year. Both are far ahead of Ruth's schedule.

Mrs. Joyce Hunt, Rowayton, Conn., housewife: No, I think Babe Ruth is too much of an idol. It seems to be an American tradition and I would not like to see it broken.

Scott Bitenour, State Road, Rutgers University freshman: Yes, I'd like to see Roger Maris break it. I think Maris is a better ball player than Mantle. Records are made to be broken.

Nancy Shaw, 55 Deer Path, PHS student: Yes, I'm a Yankee fan and I think it would be nice to see Mickey Mantle break it. He's always been one of my favorite players.

Robert Thompson, Levittown, Pa., buyer: I'd like to see both of them break it because it's been on the books too long. Records are made to be broken. I'd like to see Mantle do it because he swings from both sides of the plate.

Mrs. Ann Powers, Cherry Tree Lane, Trenton, medical secretary for Dr. Benedict Scasserra: For some reason I feel Babe Ruth's record should never be broken. It's just something you feel.

Al Tolo, 15 Harris Road, PHS freshman: Sure, I like Maris and Mantle. The record's getting too old, it's time it should be broken.

Mrs. Richard Carter, Forest Drive, housewife: No, I think it would be sad to spoil Babe Ruth's record.

Edward Gibson, 216 Johnson Avenue, Lawrence Township, salesman: Yes, because records are made to be broken. In baseball, no records are safe today.

Howard Davis, 329 Bellevue Avenue, Trenton, station attendant: Yes, I would—just to have a new, living champion.

IT'S NEW To Us

COLOR FOR LEISURE

Raspberry? Myrtle? The keynote of the fall lingerie collection at Edith's, 8-10 Chambers, is high color. Shades of raspberry, myrtle blue, hot orange; pastels from an English garden, wild mustard and sometimes almost all of these together make up the palette of fabrics for fall.

Start with the garment Edith's likes best: a Chinese "banker's coat" in rich myrtle blue, fashioned with a modified shawl collar, a short kimono cut, wide, short sleeves lined with stiff myrtle blue satin that shows two inches below the sleeve and a waist sash trimmed with a deep fountain of fringe. It's a soft fleece, $17.98.

Not many years ago nobody would have known what you meant if you said you had a tricot muu-muu, but civilization advances, and the words convey a meaning, at least to women shoppers. Edith's tricot muu-muu is dress length, made of white nylon with raspberry orange, yellow and green flowers (probably frangipani) blooming all over the place. Wear it to bed and it'll wake you in the morning without an alarm clock.

If you'd rather wake up more softly, Edith's suggests a white fine cotton chemise, dress length, with a deep 1920's ruffle around the hem. The ruffle is a mustard provincial print which appears again in a printed duster cut without collar, cuffs or ruffle, so far as we could see. It does, however, have a deep yoke and some fullness to attract attention. Short sleeves.

Cubes of panties are Edith's offering to girls off to college. These three-inch cubes contain such fancies as briefs made of pink and green smudged flowers and finished off with a pink band, or yellow and orange briefs treated in a similar manner.

These may possibly match that muu-muu, now that we think of it. Slips match the panties, in case you're interested in complete coverage.

Other youthful undergarments are for girls who are more bashful. Take, for example, a microscopic bikini made of a fine cotton print that looks exactly like a Liberty print from grandmother's day. (Or today, for that matter.) Pinks, blues, lavenders, all in quiet confusion on a white ground. A half-slip matches.

For days when a bikini is inadequate, Edith's has cotton flannel pajamas, paired with Bermudas, short legs or standard length, in floral patterns, stripes and harlequin diamonds.

Half slips in nylon tricot are too pretty to hide under a skirt. Your favorite will be the white one, scalloped around the bottom, with a print of bright foliage rising up in stalks from some dense undergrowth around the hem. Green and brown, which is the most natural, considering the subject; bright pink and raspberry or turquoise and myrtle.

For young girls, Edith's offers teen-age bras at $1.50 and $1.75, the Undergrad bra, and bonelless, strapless bras at $3.95 for dress up occasions.

Getting back to the robe department, having left with a Chinese banker's coat, we find an arnel fleece garment in coral or light blue, piped with light blue or coral, whichever contrasts. There is a low neckline gathered to make the robe full, and three-quarter sleeves gathered with a dandy's ruffie to encircle a languid wrist.

A quilted robe is a dark pastiche of royal, purple and emerald, done in irregular oblongs that give a patchwork, yet sophisticated air. The coat is a triangle, without collar but with a flat neck bow, and with wide short sleeves.

Another quilted robe is blue or pink ($12.95) with a lace edge on a deep, pointed collar and at the sleeve.

Washable navy or white flannel makes a buttonless, wrap-around robe, piped with a wide band of either navy, or white. The band goes all the way around, down the front and around the hem, and around the oval pockets, too. A sash keeps it all together.

Double-breasted terry in light beige or white makes a jumper or robe, suitable for dormitory wear. A tiger-like striped sash matches the striped cuffs. It's blue on the white, brown on the beige.

PRIME PUMP

For Walking, Talking, Spectators for walking, cocktail pumps for—well, for conversation, are the modes on Nassau Shae Tree on Palmer Square.

Palizio stacks the heel of a smoky grey spectator with squared off neck and slightly squared toe. De Liso shot an alligator the rust classic, with medium or high heel. No alligator shoe is ever cheap, as you know, but you'll find these a particularly good buy.)

Brown pearl calf is paired with a darker matte calf in a shoe with pointed toe and a high heel that's scooped in at the bottom. Grain calf in black has a slightly square high heel and a wedge of bright leather that starts at the squared toe and goes all the way up the vamp, stopping on the way to incorporate a big, black button right in the middle of the red. A dazzling shoe, with considerable high style.

A smooth black calf with a heel so high you'll need a ladder, has a teardrop of lizard, narrowly outlined with gold, right in the middle of the pointed toe. De Liso—responsible for that shoe—combines in another two shades of brown, using the darker for the heel and the pointed toe, and the lighter for the body of the shoe, which drapes over the dark toe. For girls, there is a calf shoe with squashed-in spindle heel and a half-moon drape buckle.

News Of The Theatres

The Little Theatre extracted the utmost from the play with a slapstick approach, which meant the action was frenetic and the dialogue was shouted. The interpretation was satisfactory, except the tumult and shouting combined with high-volume sound effects were a bit wearing.

The ubiquitous Peter Vajk turned up as the soldier, Zapo, whose parents (Gordon Lutz and Virginia Corbett) visited him on the battlefield for a picnic. The enemy soldier, Zepo, was played by Robert Szathmari, and Cam Bloch and John Thorpe ran in and out as the medical corpsmen.

The entire cast displayed a high degree of dash and carried off the horseplay splendidly. The high point of comedy was reached when Zapo, foot on the chest of prisoner Zepo, posed for his father's camera, which was pointed in the wrong direction. Peter Vajk's posturing was a classic. The efforts of Robert Szathmari to get into the act, and Helen Corbett's instructions to her son to throw out his chest, were hilarious; the shutter was snapped in the middle of a devastating sneeze.

For the benefit of those who missed these virtuoso performances, under John Thorpe's direction, the play ends in the middle of a frenzied flamenco dance when gun fire rudely kills all four. The stretcher bearers come back, and the curtains close.

The stage staff, besides those mentioned above, included William Vajk, Daniel Habersaat and Linda Law. Set construction was handled by Daniel Habersaat and Gordon Lutz.

Shirt Tale

People who plan to live in dormitories this winter will certainly want a shirt nightgown which happens to be on hand at Edith's brought in for persons who are going back to school. Anybody over 21 would feel pretty silly in it.

The shirt is cut as long as a shorty nightgown, and it's a good sturdy white shirt, with short sleeves. Printed all over it in black are line drawings of ridiculous little fat boys and girls occupied in various pursuits.

One boy is sipping an ice cream soda. A boy and girl together are licking lollypops, and still another boy is flying a balloon while his girl friend looks flirtatiously off at an unidentified male. More fun than doing your homework, we'd say.

The railroad track in the Williams' play and the sandbag enclosure in "Picnic" were highly effective.

Every aspect of the plays was attended to with flair. Imagination and efficiency, indicating remarkable theatrical training and discipline. Having completed its third season on so high a level, the Little Theatre should look forward to the summer of 1962 with confidence.

THE PLAYHOUSE

"Homicidal" (August 23-26) is a poor man's version of last year's thriller "Psycho." Producer-director William Castle has attempted to make a really gripping suspense film, but both the direction and the story fall far short of the Alfred Hitchcock success.

The villain of "Homicidal" is a sinisterly attractive blonde—the type to avoid in a dark alley. She starts out relatively tamely by devising an elaborate murder plot to eliminate a California justice of the peace—for no apparent reason. After finishing the dirty deed, she returns to her job as a nurse to an elderly, dumb and paralyzed woman. Before long, she is working on the murder of her patient and some relatively innocent bystanders.

As in any good mystery, information is released bit by bit. The viewer is supposed to become so wrapped up as the tension builds that he is will-mixed this fall—some have the points that have been in fashion for some time now, others have the newer square toe.

Dress shoes for fall will make you accept every invitation you receive and send out a few on your own besides. Begin with De Lisa's black suede pointer, trimmed with a band of peau de soie and a rosette at the side. Look at a regal Palizzio black suede with a narrow peau de soie band all around the shoe, including the deeply cut heart-shaped throat. The lining on this one is green-gold, but the shoe is so flattering you'll probably never take it off to show the lining.

Black faille has been used for another shoe, this one with a fringed "shawl" at the throat. A "shawl" it turns out, is a folded, flat fringed bow.

Brown, gold and black brocade cover a slim shoe with a very high heel, a very pointed toe and very high assay in flattery.

Descending to earth for a moment, we find a large collection of Caressa flats, for back-to-college, but also for occasions when you would not require a brocade pump.

These flats, like many of the heeled pumps, comprise a variety of toe styles. Many—in fact, most—are square toes, but others have a new toe that's called "Crescent," for some reason, or "almond." What this means is a modified point, that's all. Caressa also makes a black kid with a medium heel and a squared off toe, and a black suede low-cut pump with simple, classic design.

Reports Community Fund.
Contributors to the annual Princeton United Community Fund can be assured that their donations are being used to provide the greatest amount of service for every dollar spent, according to a statement issued this week by fund spokesmen.
Each member agency submits a detailed accounting of income and expenditures through a uniform budget system established by the P.U.C.F. These budgets are then analyzed by an impartial committee of 14 representative men and women of the Fund. Later, meetings are held with representatives of each agency to review their financial statements, budget requests, and to hear progress reports.

The operation of each member agency is open to the scrutiny of all at all times. In recent years, Princeton residents have been invited to attend public panels to review the budgets and service reports.

A continuous program has been established through the Princeton Council of Community Services to evaluate community needs, coordinate planning for health and welfare services, and eliminate duplication of services.

The officers observed the car stalled in a Stockton Street driveway and called headquarters after the youths were unable to produce evidence of ownership. A check revealed that the car had been reported stolen earlier the same day in Trenton by its owner, Joseph Albano of 1943 Arena Drive, Trenton. Craig and Brevard were turned over to the Trenton Police Department.

ing to overlook the trite ending, making "Homicidal" a sort of non-thinking man's mystery. Perhaps if it could be rewritten with a different ending...

Tammy Tell Me True (Aug. 27-29) again pits the ever-optimistic shantytown girl against the evils of civilization, this time as encountered on the campus of a nearby college. The actors have been changed, with Sandra Dee now portraying the innocent Tammy and John Gavin the unwary male who falls for her, but the tone is identical to that of producer Ross Hunter's earlier "Tammy and the Bachelor," right down to Tammy's disarming drawl.

At the outset of the film, Tammy leaves her grandfather's riverboat with pet goat in tow to see why her "bachelor" hasn't written from college. Once she reaches this seat of higher learning, the irresistible Tammy finds innumerable opportunities to apply her homespun philosophy to others' problems. Chief among those to whom Tammy's assistance proves therapeutic is Mrs. Call (Buddah Boudi), a rich and disillusioned matriarch whom Tammy insists is just national!

Briefly, then, Tammy continues as a grown-up Pollyanna, operating in much the same wondrous fashion but with a fair dose of young love thrown in to supplement the kid-dabbles-in-adult-lives routine. It's enough to make one wish that problems like Berlin didn't exist. In color.

The Honeymoon Machine (Aug. 30-Sept. 2) continues the light vein started by "Tammy Tell Me True" at the Playhouse. As far as name actors and deep character analysis are concerned, it isn't much, but it has a situation to top all situations.

As bright young Navy lieutenants, Steve McQueen (better known for his work as actor of television's "Dead or Alive") and Jack Mulloney have the bright idea of putting the computer used in a missile guidance system to work at more important things—predicting incoming numbers on a roulette wheel. Although the mathematicians at the University may not approve of all of this, it makes good watching, as the fleet anchors in Venice and the pair proceeds to communicate data to the computer (cryptically named MAX) by blinker light from the shore. They are aided in this project by the civilian scientist who designed MAX to begin with, played by Jim Hutton.

Of course Hollywood has gone and complicated this basically hilarious plot with details such as girls (Brigitte Bazen and Paula Prentiss, in particular, one of whom is an admiral's daughter). Also, there is a fair amount of slapstick, but neither this nor the addition of the love interest overcome the fundamental appeal of the plot.

THE GARDEN

L'Aventura (August 21-26) is a film that would probably be better the second time around than the first. Like a good play, it has deep meanings that can be appreciated only when it is possible to forget about the framework of the plot. For this reason, a single viewing leaves one a bit disturbed, feeling that he has missed something—that he has just seen a very good movie and its his fault if he didn't understand all of it.

The story itself is very simple, so simple in fact that the pace is often agonizingly slow. A beautiful young heiress disappears from a group of wealthy Italians on a yachting party weekend. Her companions, the police and especially her fiance and her best friend all join the search. The real story concerns the love affair which springs up between the heiress' fiance and her best friend as they search for her (they never do find her).

This relatively straightforward plot gives director Michelangelo Antonioni, who also wrote the script, plenty of time to develop his characters and present views on love and morality. The two chief actors, Gabriele Ferzetti as the fiance and Monica Vitti as the best friend of the "heroine," seem to have followed his directions well, producing unusually well-developed characters for a movie.

The Truth (August 28-Sept. 2) appears dedicated to the proposition that Brigitte Bardot can act. To prove this, she has been placed in the hands of Henri G. Clouzot, the well established French writer-director-producer who was responsible for "Le Corbeau" and "Diabolique." But Mlle. Bardot is no Sophia Loren who can do a magnificent job of acting when given the right script and director. Mlle. Bardot may make a better sex kitten than the Italian star but she cannot compare in acting ability.

As it turns out, however, "La Verite" presented here with subtleties rather than divided dialogue is not a complete loss. It does give Mlle. Bardot enough opportunities to exhibit her more physical talents to satisfy her regular followers. She parades in the nude once several times, in the nude once (seen from behind) and goes to bed whenever even the chance.

Mlle. Bardot manages to do murder. The question before the jury is whether or not she killed the man who jilted her for her sister in a "crime passionnel" or after careful deliberation. Of course this provides infinite opportunities to reveal Mlle. Bardot's earlier love life via flashback. It's too bad the University undergraduates will not be around to appreciate the boudoir scenes.

SCIENCE In Princeton

WELL, NOT QUITE ALL!
Project Saves Blimp. A Princeton professor's brainstorm of a year ago has resulted in a temporary reprieve for one of the Navy's blimps. For the next year at least, while the other non-rigid airship at Lakehurst sit in mothballs, this one will serve as a flying wind tunnel. It will cruise up and down the Jersey shore, collecting data on low-speed performance of models held rigidly some 20 feet below. Hopefully, the tests will lead to the development of airplanes which can land and take off on short runways.

The project was conceived last July after Prof. David C. Hazen, of Princeton University's James Forrestal Research Center went for a blimp ride. He returned ecstatic, telling his assistant, Henry Payne, "I have a solution; find me a problem."

A problem was not hard to find. The Forrestal group studying low-speed flight characteristics had faced difficulties because wind tunnels are normally built to test very fast rather than very slow planes. Instead of pushing air past a model in a wind tunnel, why not hang it under a blimp and push it through the air?

Slow and Steady. The blimp is ideal for such a project. It does not go very fast, (60 mph maximum), but it is able to go very slowly, and steadily, for long periods of time; and there is plenty of space for the necessary equipment in the gondola. Whereas wind tunnel walls tend to get in the way at low speeds with large models, there are virtually no "walls" for a model suspended 20 feet under an airborne blimp.

Prof. Hazen and his group started with a small (285-foot) obsolete type blimp but have since graduated to a larger (343-foot), newer model. In both cases the test models are suspended below the gondola by an aluminum tube, with wires running from the measuring devices on the model up through the tube to the recording instruments in the gondola.

Forrestal Pioneers Method. Professor Hazen transplanted and adapted some Forrestal equipment for use in the blimp. Tests were conducted on several models with the smaller airship, but to date only calibration tests on one model have been run with the larger blimp.

Weather presents no problem between March or April and January, although of late thunderstorms have occasionally forced postponement of a flight. Even when it is gusty on the ground, the blimp is able to find relatively calm air at some height up to 5000 feet with the larger model over the ocean.

Now that the initial work has been done by Princeton, a group is being trained to

MEANWHILE, BACK IN THE RADOME: Prof. David C. Hazen, 34-year old Princeton aerodynamicist, adjusts a model in the radome of the SPG-2 Blimp. The model, a S2F anti-submarine plane, is lowered through the bottom of the radome on the metal tube (black stripes) to hang below the blimp for low-speed performance testing.

KENDALL PARK COMPLETE

Five-Year Development. Construction of the 1500-home Kendall Park community in Franklin Park has been completed. Developer Herbert J. Kendall foresees "a beautiful future" for the rural site under the state and national "open space" programs.

Begun in 1956 by Mr. Kendall and his associate, David C. Savage, the construction of the community has advanced at a rate of 300 homes a year in accordance with an agreement between the builders and the township. Mr. Kendall claimed that the slow construction tempo has retarded the suburban stereotype within the community.

Suggesting that Kendall Park would be a "revelation" to sociologists studying the suburban conformity problem, he explained that some 90 professions and trades are represented in the community, ranging from steamfitters to Ph.D.'s. He added that most of the residents are members of at least one of the 40 organizations created for the development.

Statistics on completed construction total 12 million feet of lumber, 60,000 tons of concrete and nearly 4 million man-hours of labor. Sales of the 1,500 homes, built on 800 acres, total some $26 million. In addition, the builders erected schools and playgrounds at no cost to the residents.

Complete With Everything. Mr. Kendall asserted that the success of the community "is evidence of a growing appreciation by the public of the advantages of mass production housing." He explained that the large scale of the project enabled the builders to construct a community shopping center, all roads and utilities and the water and sewerage systems.

"We are hopeful that the green belt of hundreds of square miles that surrounds Kendall Park will be kept as projectionist beautiful, in recognition of the open space program that is now so much a part of the concepts of the land planners of our country," he added.

800 SEE YMCA FILMS

To Repeat Next Summer. Encouraged by the turnout for last week's showing of "The Living Desert," the YMCA is planning to sponsor an enlarged movie program for the community next summer. Over 800 adults and children saw the Walt Disney Film at its four showings last week, according to John S. Mount, chairman of the YMCA adult program committee.

Willis A. Bussan was in charge of the program, assisted by Welles Fendrich, Jack Stewart and Mr. Mount. Raymond Hallows, a member of the Y Men's Club, served as projectionist.

Report from THE MAYOR

No Summing Up: It would be impossible for any one man to know the full story of the contributions of the late Irving W. Mershon to the Princeton community. This fact was brought home to the Mayor last Thursday while walking slowly from the church services up Nassau Street, chatting with more than a score of people who were thinking back over their years of pleasant association with this humble, dedicated man.

A few examples of their comments: One man said, "Mayor, when I was so sick in the hospital, he wrote me a letter every week—it meant so much to me." Another said, "Nobody knows this, but one day Mr. Mershon stopped me on Nassau Street, asked how I was—and I told him I had no work, no money, no prospects. He took me back to his office, made a lot of phone calls, and that day I had a part time job that kept me going."

Another man, prominent in business for many years, said "They don't come like that any more. This man was terrific. Anybody who ever had a business dealing with him will tell you he was a 100% straight-shooter." To these quiet testimonials, the Mayor could add a long list, including acknowledgment of his many contributions to Borough business affairs and his always helpful advice on fiscal matters. He will not be forgotten.

A Community Effort: There is no doubt that this year's efforts by volunteers in support of the Princeton United Community Fund should set another high standard. The intensity of effort can be gathered from the letter just received from Dave Crawford on behalf of one division of the fund. By the way of a reply postal card, the volunteer is given two choices. Yes, I will work, or "Sorry but due to an assignment with the Peace Corps in Tanganyika I cannot serve but will organize a United Fund there."

Real Estate: This has been an active year for Mayor and Council in weighing various real estate matters, particularly in relation to off-street parking. The latest include further details in the developing pattern for the Nassau East project (Vandevelter-Nassau Moore) as well as further inquiries concerning the possibility of early progress in the interior of the Witherspoon-Nassau-Vandevelter area. Council also has before it the rather intriguing proposal with respect to possible commercial development "upstairs" over its old street facilities.

Friday Open House: "Tell it to the Mayor" sessions will be held on Friday, August 25, and on Friday, September 1, from 7 to 10 p.m. at Borough Hall. No appointment is ever necessary for these informal meetings.

Also on the Mayor's schedule during the past week meetings with the Public Safety Committee of the Council, a meeting of the Princeton Hospital Board of Trustees, and a visit to the Borough's "locked box" with Deputy Collector Patterson to clip a few coupons from some Borough-owned U.S. government bonds and to check on the other items of Borough investment.

PIHS FOOTBALL FORECAST

(This is the first of two articles on Princeton High School's football prospects for 1961.)

Cloudy, with Possible Victories. Princeton High School's football coach Joe Jingoli has the material to field a good Little Tiger team this fall—on paper.

Sixteen lettermen, including five juniors, are scheduled to return to the Blue and White this year. But after many years, Jingoli, who is starting his 16th season as head coach, can only hum the familiar song, "It Ain't Necessarily So." That dream the PIHS coach has been mentally assembling with lettermen at virtually every position will, in all likelihood, little resemble the starting eleven that takes the field at Freehold September 30 when the Little Tigers open their season against Freehold High School.

With varying severity, somewhat like the pollen count which can be mild one year and terrible the next, coaches fall heir to multiple misfortunes which reduce their dream teams on paper to stark reality. Key players move away, transfer to prep schools, sustain incapacitating injuries, become ineligible for academic reasons or discover they must attend a newly-erected school in their own community. Coaches are vulnerable to these unexpected twists and Jingoli is going to be the recipient of a number of them this fall.

HARD TO REPLACE: Russ Perone, co-captain of the 1960 Princeton High School football team and standout tailback for the past two seasons, is among the missing lettermen. Coach Joe Jingoli must replace prior to the season's opener with Freehold H.S. on September 30th.

At the moment, two veteran backfield players, among others, may not be able to don a uniform in September. Jingoli's crystal ball is cloudy now and it isn't going to start clearing until the first practice sessions get underway.

"It's just too early to say anything definite about who will play and in what position," he reports.

First Practice Set. The Little Tigers will start practice sessions September 5 at 8:30. There will be only one a day. Jingoli said he expects from 85-90 varsity and junior varsity and 50 freshman candidates to try out.

PIHS has not had a losing season for a number of years. Last year, the Little Tigers had a 4-2-1 record. In 1959, they won the important games in compiling a 5-2-1 mark to earn the mythical Mercer County crown. Jingoli and his staff would like some more of the same.

Included in that coaching staff is Dick Wood, who has worked hand-in-glove with Jingoli for the past 16 years in coaching the offensive units. Dick handles the linemen while Jingoli instructs the backfield players. Starting his tenth year as defensive coach is Jerry Gronger.

In charge of the junior varsity for the past seven years has been George Pavlatis. Tony Borzok has served as freshman coach for nine years.

Murray Joins Staff. A newcomer to the PIHS coaching staff this season will be Tom Murray. Tom was a co-captain of the 1953 PIHS football team. He will assist the freshman and junior varsity coaches.

Who's on the 1961 PIHS roster? As Jingoli pointed out, it is too early to say anything definite about any position. All he can do at this juncture is to declare, "Of those who played last year on varsity or junior varsity teams, those are the likely candidates for this position this year." So with no allowances for newcomers, or for changes in status of returning players, these are the chief candidates for the backfield positions.

Quarterback: The most important player in the single-wing formation employed by Jingoli ("I've used it for 15 years and I'm not going to change now") is the quarterback. He runs the team and calls each play. The success or failure of a team is a barometer of his football I.Q. Vying for this spot are seniors Tom Olsen and Ron Decker and two juniors, Tom Wilson and Bill Armstrong.

Of the four, Olsen, who earned a letter playing behind Bob Chibbaro, first-string quarterback last year, is the most likely starter. Packing 187 pounds on a 5'10" frame, Tom has the ruggedness and the weight for the blocking position entails. He can follow the development of opposing plays well, an ability which enabled him to recover a number of fumbles last year.

A knee injury makes Decker a question mark. Tom Wilson is described by Jingoli as a "bright boy" but lacks experience. Armstrong is untried.

Wingback: Top candidate for the wingback position is 150 lb., 5'8" Don Zuber, captain-elect of the 1961 Little Tigers. Jingoli labels Zuber a hard tackler, a good defensive halfback, and "a fine boy to coach."

Zuber will be pressed by two juniors, Jack Rosso, "a good pass receiver," and Mike Brackney. John Coreoran, who saw limited action in the position last year and was a linebacker on defense, will be switched to tackle or guard, according to Jingoli.

Tailback: One of the hardest backfield positions to fill will be the big hole left at tailback by triple-threat Russ Perone. Although only 5'8" and never weighing more than 160 pounds, Russ led the Little Tigers in scoring as a junior. Hampered somewhat by injuries last fall, the diminutive co-captain still did the bulk of the passing and running and all of the punting for PIHS.

In line to succeed Russ are Gil Fisher and Bob Salter, both returning lettermen. Gil is a fast runner and good on short passes. A junior, Salter gained much yardage for the Blue and White by turning good passer" and a "deceptive runner." Ron Panicaro, 5'10" and 160, is a "hard runner" and "very coachable, a pleasure to work with." Doug Jiggins is untested.

Fullback: One of the bright spots this year is the fullback slot. Three returning lettermen — Charles Pemberton, Tom Reynolds and Edwin Mueller — will permit Jingoli to direct his attention elsewhere.

Of the three, Pemberton is outstanding. Charlie has the endearing facility of improving with every succeeding contest. By the end of the season, he was virtually unstoppable up the middle.

Last year Pemberton packed 192 pounds on a 5'9" frame. This year he should be stronger and come into his own. When he is replaced, the also kicks points after touchdowns. Reynolds, 185, and Mueller, 160, will give the enemy little relief.

Summing up, the backfield has experience, fleet halfbacks, and depth at fullback. What it lacks badly is a passer of the caliber of a Jack Hawkins who can mix up the attack. Whether Jingoli can develop a capable passer by September 30 is a major question.

Next Week: The line.

YOUNG TENNIS PLAYERS
Climb Improvement "Ladder." Over 60 boys and girls have begun climbing the new Junior Tennis Ladder at the University courts. Open to all Princeton players under 18, the ladder is designed to encourage tennis enthusiasts to meet new players and at the same time improve their game.

With separate divisions for girls and boys at the 11, 13, 15 and 18-year old levels, the ladder is recommended for those who have had some playing experience and can maintain a full court match. For the beginner, a six-week supervised practice session is being planned at the High School courts, beginning Saturday morning, September 8. For further information call the YWCA office, WA 4-4825. Those interested in joining the ladder are asked to sign up at the University courts. Complete instructions as to how the ladder works are posted on the Pagoda Bulletin Board at the courts.

CORNELL GIVEN EDGE
By Ivy Experts. In the Ivy League, the nation's oldest football fraternity, pre-season predictions have a habit of looking more ridiculous with each succeeding week.

The somewhat dubious honor of being the pre-season choice to win the Ivy crown this year goes to Cornell University. The support of the majority of experts, in a joint release by the eight institutions, stems from two factors, a new coach and a pair of fine backs.

The new Big Red mentor is Tom Harp. Tom served his apprenticeship as an Army assistant and is highly regarded in coaching ranks. Dave McKelvey and Marcy Tino, two of the League's finest backfield players, will put a big punch in his offensive plays. Pennsylvania and Dartmouth are also picked as having a good chance of coping the title. Led by tailback Porter Shreve, the Red and Blue squad will be bolstered by 15 returning lettermen. The Indians will benefit from a freshman team undefeated in Ivy play last year.

What of the defending Yale Bulldogs who swept over all competition last fall for a fine undefeated, untied record? Although it is always smart to stick with the champion, it is felt that the loss of 10 out of 11 starters will be too much for Yale to overcome. Princeton is in much the same position as Yale. Like Yale, it had a fine season, finishing a surprising second when the same experts had relegated the Tigers to a much lower standing. However, they, too, have lost many key players and face a big rebuilding job. Too big to win!

Columbia, Brown, and Harvard will each probably record a major upset, an Ivy hallmark. But none should win more than it loses—according to the self-styled experts!

PEOPLE In the News

JOSEPH BROWN RETURNS
From Asian Goodwill Tour.
Princeton University sculptor-boxing coach Joseph Brown has returned from a four-month State Department tour to five Asian countries.
In Japan, Taiwan, Indonesia, Thailand and Burma he conducted art lectures and boxing clinics in addition to turning out 20 sculptures, mostly depicting local sports heroes.

Art and athletics interwoven in the life of the 52-year old, ex-professional fighter, mixed naturally in Asia, he reported. "In Thailand boxers do a ritual dance before fighting into one another with feet as well as fists; and Chinese 'art boxing' is more like ballet than the brawling we're familiar with in the West."

"Everywhere I went, I found the amateur spirit superior to ours in America," Brown observed. "Play for them is not geared to any monetary reward as it so often is over here."

He is now putting the finishing touches on the 16 statuettes and four small busts done on the tour. When completed and cast in bronze, copies of the work will be sent to the subjects' home areas, usually to the local United States Information Center. In Burma, he noted, there are plans to start an Athletic Hall of Fame using four of his statuettes as the nucleus.

Miss Rosaline M. Constantino, formerly with Educational Testing Service, received a Bachelor of Arts in English and Secondary Education from Rider College on August 18. She will teach in the Pennsbury N.J. School Syscompleting her education, she

News Of The CHURCHES

PORTABLE WARMTH

The Calvary Baptist Church is collecting sweaters to help alleviate the less-publicized refugee problem in Hong Kong. Because the refugees from Communist China have no place to store blankets and the like, sweaters are about the most practical gift which has been discovered.

Sweater collecting is a personal project of the Rev. and Mrs. Elbert E. Gates Jr., formerly with the First Baptist Church in Westfield and now serving Church World Service in Hong Kong. Although the refugee flow into Hong Kong is considerably lower than that into West Berlin, there are still some 700,000 without homes in the British Crown Colony.

The Gates hope to supply 10,000 refugees with sweaters. All contributions should be left at the door of the Calvary Baptist Church, corner of Walnut Lane and Houghton Road.

Night-time gossip
from the trees.
Incessant on a summer breeze:
A colloquy where nothing's hid
"Katy didn't?"
"Katy DID!"
—SLEEPLESS SUE

Remarking that she composed this poem during a waking hour around 3 a.m., Sue admitted having been left in some doubt as to whether Katy really had or hadn't, but reported next time she listened in that the debate was still raging. Frost may be six weeks away according to this weather yardstick, but fall seemed just around the corner with temperatures in the 50's during the wee hours. In the immediate future, mid-week cloudiness and showers are supposed to give way to a precedent-shattering fair and sunny weekend.

COOL ROOFS
LAST LONGER

JUST ONE COAT of GILSUME will reflect up to 70% of the destructive rays of the sun. This means years of life added to roofs. GILSUME actually reduces under-roof temperatures by 15%. GILSUME's low cost combined with its long life means continuing economies in roof protection and maintenance.
